Dear colleagues,

As we continue our preparations for the resumption of on-campus activity for the 2021/2022 academic year, it is important that everyone is fully informed about the plans that the university is adopting in line with government guidance for working with COVID-19. Our overriding objective must be to ensure the health and safety of all staff and students, particularly given the dynamic situation with the latest variant of COVID-19.

Our colleagues have been busy planning the next steps that we need to take to prepare for an effective and safe return to campus governed by the national guidelines that have been made available to us. We have completed a review of our plans in consultation with our social partners and the updated TU Dublin's Response Plan V2, Working with COVID-19 document is now available on the intranet. This detailed document outlines the measures that need to be taken to prevent the spread of COVID-19 within the university community and outlines our individual responsibilities in this regard.

This document incorporates public health advice about the current measures aimed at reducing the spread of COVID-19 within the campus community. As public health advice and measures continue to evolve, the measures required will also continue to evolve – so the information provided in this latest version of the document is subject to change.

Returning to Campus Reminder

If you haven't already done so please ensure you complete the following before you return to campus:

- COVID Online Training Module, and
- A Return to Campus Form

Please do take the time to read through this latest version of TU Dublin's Response Plan V2, Working with COVID-19 document which has been prepared with the health and safety of our university community in mind.

If you have any questions after reading this document, please direct your questions, in the first instance, to your manager.

Best regards,

David.
