Subject: COVID19 Update
Date: Friday 18 September 2020 19:37:00

Dear Student,

You will have already heard that the Government has moved Dublin to Level 3 of the Living with Covid-19 plan from midnight tonight (18th September). As a result, under the new restrictions, TU Dublin has introduced an enhanced set of measures ahead of programmes commencing next Monday to help with efforts to halt the rising incidence of Covid-19 in Dublin.

Under the latest restrictions, TU Dublin along with other HEI's will continue to reopen for the 2020/21 academic year, but there may be some changes to your timetable, with all programme activity not requiring attendance on-campus moving to remote delivery where possible. Classes of a more practical nature such as laboratories, kitchens, studios or workshops will continue on-campus as planned. Please keep an eye out for specific information and updates being provided from your programme.

Over the summer months, TU Dublin has worked to put in place appropriate safety measures to ensure that laboratory, workshops and studio activities can be conducted in as close to a normal manner as possible. In preparation, every campus location has been assessed, and appropriate signage and cleaning regimes established. Signage will indicate clearly how to move through the building, with separate exits and entrances where possible. Most importantly, face coverings must be worn at all times in indoor communal and teaching environments and in any situation where appropriate social distancing of 2 metres or more cannot be maintained.

You will find more information about health, safety and COVID-19 on our website here.

Best regards,

Professor David FitzPatrick
