

TU DUBLIN CONSERVATOIRE

B.A. (Honours) in Drama (Performance)

The B.A. (Hons) is a three-year, full-time degree in practical drama training and education. While practical performance is at the core of the course, students also gain skills in substantial academic research and analysis.

TU Dublin Conservatoire has over 25 years' experience in drama training and is one of the leading centers of education in the performing arts in Ireland. Our graduates have had national and international success as actors, directors, drama facilitators, and drama researchers.

What will I study as a Drama student?

You'll study fundamental acting techniques, voice and language in performance (including Shakespeare), and performance in a variety of cultural, historical and aesthetic contexts. You'll develop your body through movement, singing, dance and combat. You'll learn how to use drama in social and educational contexts through performance and running workshops. You'll also develop skills in researching, analysing, and writing about a wide range of drama and performance. Over the three years, there are one small-scale production and two large-scale graduating productions. There are also opportunities to study abroad for a semester in Columbia College Chicago or via an Erasmus exchange.

tudublin.ie

Structure

Acting: including ensemble, scene-work, Shakespeare, radio drama, and acting for camera.

Drama Facilitation: including drama in education, and drama in social contexts.

Academic study of drama and theatre: including critical analysis, theatre history, and thesis project.

Practical skills: including movement, singing, dance, stage combat, voice and speech.

Production experience.

Study abroad opportunities

Programme Duration

3 year (Honours Degree)

Who do I contact for more information?

Dr. Tanya Dean
tanya.dean@tudublin.ie

