

ARTICLE PROCESSING CHARGES (APC)

What is an APC?

- A one-time fee paid to the publisher of a Gold or Hybrid Open Access journal.
- Payment of the APC ensures that your research is published as Open Access, making it freely available to anyone.
- We advise, to be eligible for APC funding, both the manuscript submission date and the acceptance date must fall within the same eligibility year.

Write

Select A Journal

Submission

Peer Review

Revision

Acceptance

A full list of all the journals included in the IReL agreements can be found in our Quick Guide to IReL Deals

Peer review and revisions can take time, so the date your paper is accepted may affect whether funding is still available.

APCs are applied at the point of article acceptance

Green Open Access Route?

If funding is not available, please be aware that there may be the option to self-archive

Publish in a subscription journal

Deposit your Author Accepted Manuscript (AAM) into Pure (Research Information Management System)

No APC fee required

Scholarly Publishing Support Guides

- Getting Published
- Open Access Publishing Agreements \(IReL\)
- Arrow \(Institutional Repository\)
- Pure \(Research Information Management System\)

If you have any questions in relation to any of the open access publishing agreements, please contact library.researchservices@TUDublin.ie